

Council of Canadian Administrative Tribunals Conseil des tribunaux administratifs canadiens

Implementing the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples in Canadian Courts and Tribunals October-November 2024

Biographies

Risa Schwartz

Risa Schwartz is a sole practitioner, focusing on international law and the intersections between trade and investment law, environmental law and Indigenous rights. Risa formerly worked as a senior research fellow with Centre for International Governance Innovation's International Law Research Program. She has also held positions as counsel to the Ministry of Aboriginal Affairs in Ontario, and the Ministry of the Environment, and worked as a legal officer at the World Trade Organization in Geneva, Switzerland. Risa has co-edited two books on Indigenous rights and international law: Braiding Legal Orders (McGill-Queen's University Press, 2019) and Indigenous Peoples and International Trade: Building equitable and inclusive International Trade and Investment Agreements (Cambridge University Press, 2020.)

Brenda Gunn

Professor Brenda Gunn is a Red River Métis legal scholar with 20 years of experience researching and advocating for the rights of Indigenous peoples at both the domestic and international level. She is a Professor at Robson Hall Faculty of Law, University of Manitoba. Brenda has numerous publications on the UN Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples and has done training internationally around implementing Indigenous peoples' rights. Brenda continues to be actively involved in the international Indigenous peoples' movement. She provided technical assistance to the UN Expert Mechanism on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples in the analysis and drafting of the report summarizing the responses on the survey on implementing the UN Declaration. She developed a handbook on understanding and implementing the UN Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples that continues to be a main resources in Canada.