Christina Gray, Senior Associate (she/her)

Christina is Ts'msyen and Dene. She is a member of Lax Kw'alaams in northern British Columbia. She is also Dene from Łutsël K'é (Treaty 8) on Great Slave Lake in the Northwest Territories.

Christina's practice includes advocating for First Nation clients in negotiations and court proceedings. She supports Indigenous nation-building work through law-making and governance. She is passionate about governance and strengthening Indigenous self-determination through strategic negotiations. Her land management work includes coordinating land code development and Indigenous Protected and Conserved Area negotiations, and she supports additions to reserve through related governance and land stewardship processes.

Christina's approach is collaborative and guided by community voices and priorities, drawing on experience across human rights, Indigenous legal orders, as well as law and policy development. She has represented clients before the Ontario Superior Court of Justice and Ontario Human Rights Tribunal and has presented and supported work on Indigenous law, human rights, and child welfare law-making. Her background includes research, publication, and facilitation on Ts'msyen law, Indigenous place names, the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples and treaty interpretation.

Christina is licensed in British Columbia, Ontario, Yukon, and holds a Restricted Appearance Certificate in the Northwest Territories. She holds a Juris Doctor from the University of British Columbia and a Master of Laws from the University of Victoria.
